

2021 Donuts & Distributions: Quantitative Research Methods Reading Group

Invited Lecture

How I met meta-analysis: An overview of my experience in conducting meta-analysis

Presenter: Dr. Takumi Uchihara (Waseda University)

Date: November 22 (Monday)

Time: 9:00—10:00

Zoom Meeting ID: <https://msu.zoom.us/j/91446781666>

Zoom Link: 914 4678 1666
(Passcode: 907397)

In this talk, Dr. Takumi Uchihara will be looking back on his experience in conducting his meta-analysis project while he was studying at University of Western Ontario as a Ph.D. student. He will be sharing how he started to be interested in doing meta-analysis, specific procedures he took to publish his study in Language Learning, and some difficulties and useful tips for conducting meta-analysis. There is no required reading for the lecture but the following article is a recommended reading for the session:

LANGUAGE LEARNING
A Journal of Research in Language Studies

Language Learning ISSN 0023-8333

SYSTEMATIC REVIEW ARTICLE

The Effects of Repetition on Incidental Vocabulary Learning: A Meta-Analysis of Correlational Studies

Takumi Uchihara , Stuart Webb , and Akifumi Yanagisawa

University of Western Ontario

Uchihara, T., Webb, S., & Yanagisawa, A. (2019). The effects of repetition on incidental vocabulary learning: A meta-analysis of correlational studies. Language Learning, 69(3), 559-599. <https://doi.org/10.1111/lang.12343>

---

Donuts & Distributions Quantitative Research Methods Reading Group

For more information, please contact the D&D organizer, Kiyotaka Suga (sugakiyo@msu.edu).